

STEWARDS DARE . . .

Stewards dare to live as if Jesus Christ were the centre of their lives and the source of their livelihoods.

Stewards dare to live as if life in Christ were the one desire animating all others in their everyday actions.

Stewards dare to live as if sharing their lives and gifts with one another were the only viable option for being truly human.

Stewards dare to live as if they can no longer pretend that stewardship were simply a choice, rather than an ultimate concern for life itself.